CRO

Straightforward Balls & Arrows for the Novices here, and no real complications if you remember it is CRO. The route gets very close to the edge of the map on occasions, but just manages to stay in play.

No arrows for the Experts and at first it may seem that it is just the arrowheads which have been omitted. But the fact that some of the "junctions" only have 2 legs should suggest that it is the whole exit road arrow which has been omitted. This is of course quite obvious when you see both types of the instruction side by side as above, but perhaps not so obvious when it is only the Expert instruction which you see.

Analysis of the first few CRO junctions after the control, and comparison with the first few elements of the instruction should get you going in the right direction (literally).

Get a clear idea about what is going on, and apply it consistently as you work through the instruction, and you will get the correct route.
